STATE LIQUOR SYSTEM UPHELD BY U. S. COURT

Monopoly Constitutional

DRUG COMPANY'S SUIT INVOLVED

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Jan. 13.—A three-judge federal court upheld today the constitutionality of the Ohio liquor monopoly system and its right to regulate the sale and distribution of all liquor within the state.

The case involved the suit of the Walding, Kinnam and Marvin Co., Toledo, who contended that the monopoly of retail liquor business in Ohio was unconstitutional because it deprived them of property rights and business.

The firm sought the right to sell liquor for medicinal purposes as it did before the state liquor law became operative.

Judges upholding the contention of the state that the liquor law was constitutional were Circuit Judge Florence Allen and District Judges M. G. Underwood and Robert Norvin.

"There is no inherent right or vested property in the business of selling intoxicating liquors and no property or privilege, within the protection of the constitution of the state, is taken away, denied or invaded by the liquor control act of the State of Ohio in its restriction and regulation of the liquor traffic in Ohio," the decision said.

The court also held that the drug firm had raised no substantial federal question.

The Toledo firm, if it desires, may appeal the decision directly to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Robert Taft, Cincinnati attorney, in arguing the case for the company last March, maintained that its liquor business amounted to considerably more than $3,000 a year. He had been destroyed by the "peculiar" powers granted to the state liquor department.

Morton Iovov representing the liquor department and Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy contended that the state could prohibit private firms from engaging in the liquor business and that the monopoly system was only a small part of the act to regulate the liquor business.

Another suit challenging constitutionality of the liquor act is now before the Ohio supreme court. Brought by Eli Frankenstein, Cincinnati attorney, it probably will be argued late in February or in March.

Find Wreckage of Giant Clipper In Pacific

Capt. E. C. Musick

The 21-ton Pan-American Clipper

Radio advices to the Navy department were to the effect that wreckage of the missing Samoan clipper, giant flying boat linking Australia and the United States, had been found near Pago Pago, Tutuila, and "identification was satisfactory." The Navy's base ship Avocet reported the discovery and recovery of parts of the wrecked plane, which is pictured above with the captain, Edwin C. Musick.

EIGHT KILLED IN MINE BLAST

Twenty-Five Survive Explosion 17 Miles East Of Pittsburgh

(By Associated Press)
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 13.—Thrilling stories of heroism and tragedy were related today by the 25 survivors of a mine blast 17 miles east of here in which eight were known dead and two others missing and believed to be dead.

Weary rescue crews with masks still were working their way slowly along the 3,600-foot passageway which was partly wrecked shortly before noon yesterday, seeking the missing two.

Three bodies brought out early today were identified by mine officials as John Kruszek 21; Joseph Lerch, 24, and Doss Nicholas, 41, all of Harwick.

All were badly burned. Lerch and Kruszek were loaders and Nicholas was a fire boss.

No Hope For Missing

C. W. Gibbs, general manager of the mine, said there was no hope the missing ones had escaped both the explosion and the deadly gas which formed quickly.

Although the mine, scene of a disastrous explosion 34 years ago in which 185 lives were lost, normally had more than 500 miners in it, there were but 35 repairmen and supervisors at work when the blast occurred.

W. J. Fene, an engineer of the U. S. bureau of mines, estimated the explosion took place about two miles from the shaft, which drops 200 feet from beside a snow-flaked hill.

The dead also included Thomas Kaffer, 38; Joseph Koprivnikar, 41; Frank Harpster, 32; Joe Prelesnik, 44, and Matt Anderson, 59, a mine foreman.

Chief Deputy Coroner John Aldis said the missing were Frank Ciesielski and Tony Weiner.

Four were injured, two critically, and brought out by their heroic companions.

Knocked Down By Blast

Andrew Humanik, a rock driller, estimated he was about 500 yards from the blast.

"It knocked my partner and me down and rolled us over twice," said Humanik. "We lay down for five minutes with our hands against our faces. Then I looked and saw the head lamps of some men. I yelled 'come on,' nudged my partner and ran to help."

Episcopal Dean Fasts; Works Out New Philosophy

(By Associated Press)
MEMPHIS, Tenn.—Friends of the Very Rev. Israel Harding Noe waited fearfully today as the 46-year-old clergyman neared the end of his second week without food or water.

Although the dean of St. Mary's fashionable Episcopal cathedral has been carrying on a full schedule of work, physicians among his friends have expressed belief his collapse may come at any hour. He has told them what he is doing is a spiritual demonstration beyond their comprehension.

Friends said Dean Noe had subsisted all of last year on oranges alone, starting from Dec. 23, 1936. Since Jan. 2, the first Sunday of 1938, he has taken only the tiny wafer and sip of wine of the communion service he holds three times weekly.

Only a Shadow

A man of unusually robust health at the time he began his demonstration, he is now only a shadow of the heavy-set, rosy-checked clergyman of former years.

In a statement last night, Dean Noe expressed surprise at a story published yesterday concerning the

BLAST BLAMED IN PLANE LOSS

Evidence of Destruction Of Clipper Brought By Searchers

(By Associated Press)
PAGO PAGO, Samoa, Jan. 13.—Clear indication that the giant Samoan clipper and her crew of seven were destroyed in a fire and explosion was brought to Pago Pago today by the minesweeper Avocet.

The naval craft returned to port with charred fragments of the flying boat after an all-day search for the oil slick 12 miles off Pago Pago where the all-metal trans-Pacific plane crashed in flames Tuesday.

Every item recovered showed signs of an internal explosion. All were charred, burned and covered with aluminum powder.

No Hope For Bodies

Because of the condition of the fragments, no hope was held of recovering from the shark-infested waters the bodies of Capt. Edwin C. Musick, 43-year-old Pan American Airways ace, and his crew of six. The clipper carried no passengers.

The plane caught fire while dumping excess gasoline preparatory to landing at Pago Pago to repair a broken oil line after starting out on a flight for Auckland, N. Z. It crashed in a thousand fathoms of water.

Wreckage found by the Avocet included: A coat belonging to Radio Officer T. J. Findley, 29, of Alameda, Calif. It showed evidence of holes blown through it. A wing emblem was the identifying mark on the coat.

Trousers belonging to J. A. Brooks, 38, of Honolulu, assistant engineering officer. They were identified by a

Death Records Strange Ending In Love Problem

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Jan. 13.—Death—recorded today as murder and suicide—ended the strange love of a father and daughter who met only recently in this Westmoreland county mining village, then learned their relationship.

The girl's mother, Pearl Hollis, found the bodies, side by side and both shot in the head, in the living room of her home yesterday.

Dr. H. Albert McMurray, coroner, identified the dead as 17-year-old Nelson Meese and his 17-year-old daughter, Nellie. McMurray listed the deaths as murder and suicide.

The coroner said Meese had not seen his daughter since her birth until they met here recently, and that the two had then fallen in love. He said two letters found in the girl's purse led him to this conclusion.

One, mailed last Dec. 31 from Brownsville, Pa., read:

"It is going to be hard for me to leave you now. You may not believe this, but you are the only person I ever saw that I really liked and you turn out to be my daughter."

The other dated last Nov. 15, reads:

"You have filled a space for me that has been empty for many years. You won't have to tell me in words that you like me. I know you do. I am sure you know how I feel about you."

The coroner said Nellie was born to Meese and Pearl Hollis. The girl lived with her mother.

WORTH NOTING, TOO

The purpose of blocking the Ludlow war referendum resolution was to show aggressor governments the government of the United States will continue to be free to deal with them in the old fashioned way if they go too far and invite military reprisals.

That may be putting it bluntly, but the high-pressure methods used to stop possible favorable action on the resolution and the strong words employed by its opponents show that in the highest places in Washington the resolution was regarded as a dangerous threat to national prestige in international relations.

These methods and words have been duly noted. The Ludlow resolution has been blocked, though by far from an overwhelming vote. In fact, the closeness of the vote, 209 to 188, provides something else worth noting—something for the government, particularly:

This is the fact the people's direct representatives, though opposed by a slim majority to putting the question of offensive warfare to a popular vote, are by no means opposed to going on record in large numbers for the purpose of proving to executive officials of the government that they lack something in popular confidence.

Washington officialdom, it is plain, wanted to avert what it believed would have been an embarrassing and possibly dangerous blunder. It is no less plain that members of the house, reflecting popular opinion, wanted Washington officialdom to be kept equally safe from harm, a point which should not be missed.

ON APPOINTING WOMAN TO OFFICE

There is no reason under the sun why a woman should not become a member of the supreme court of the United States. If there is, let those who linger in the horse and buggy days of unequal rights speak up—and let them, also, be ready to duck and run.

But it is no less true that there is no reason under the sun why a woman should become a member of the supreme court simply because of her sex. If, as seems to be the case, President Roosevelt is trying out public opinion on this matter by sending aloft trial balloons, he will not find any lack of conviction on that score.

If there is in the United States today a woman so eminently qualified to sit on the supreme bench that she cannot be passed by without injury to the welfare of the country, then by all means that woman should be appointed.

If giving the appointment to a woman, however, would entail passing by men more eminently qualified than she is for the job, then by all means the woman should not be appointed. No matter how many trial balloons Mr. Roosevelt may send aloft, no matter what observations he may make, it's not likely public opinion will depart far from this line of ordinary common sense on the subject of appointing women to high offices.

Suckers in Revolt

The high pressure gents putting over New York's world's fair aren't making many mistakes. But, being human, they slip once in a while, too.

They slipped when they put world's fair advertising on the state's automobile license plates, not by getting it on the plates, which was a stroke of promotional genius, but by failing to build up acceptance for their big idea in advance.

For one of the characteristics of the human animal is a tendency to get sore when he thinks someone is taking advantage of his good nature. When the "sucker" also happens to be from "the city," that makes everything doubly bad. Upper New York states always expect the worst from the metropolis anyway.

The New York world's fair promoters will get their project advertised; not many New York state auto owners will have gumption enough to obliterate the controversial words on their new 1938 license plates. But, by taking for granted the fact that no one but a few disgruntled suckers would squawk, the promoters have needlessly generated a certain amount of bad will.

Instead of a few suckers, it's evident now that some thousands of Empire state motorists are eager to go on record against exploitation without consent. Maybe this will teach promoters something about human nature, but it's doubtful.

THE STARS SAY:

For Friday, January 14

According to the lunar transits for this day, there may be various kinds of portentous situations to confront. Writings, documents and legal matters may need wise consideration. Fraud and loss and possibly bereavement may be devastating. Old matters appear complicated and may be better for further postponements.

Those whose birthday it is should be prepared for a year in which sound judgment, patience and perseverance may be required to sidestep some ominous situations. Legal matters, documents, letters or other writings are involved, calling for precaution against loss, trickery, fraud and malicious enmity. Old matters, elders and the health may give concern also; protect each of them.

A child born on this day may be clever and talented but disposed to put over its schemes and shrewd ideas through smooth practices, trickery or easy methods. This may bring it into legal jeopardy or some form of public penalty, unless it be given rigorous training in honor and integrity in its earliest youth.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—Newspaper and magazine editors, movie talent scouts and especially newspaper syndicate chiefs are still toying with the forlorn hope of flushing another Will Rogers out of the corn rows. So far every effort has met the usual odious comparison.

Indeed, anyone with half of Rogers' tug in similar vain could, in the patois of the Rialto, "write his own ticket." His drawl, natural shyness and hesitancy in speech are often simulated. And there are a half dozen in Hollywood extra lists who look, laugh and walk like him.

Also there are a few whose imitative dry humor on stage and radio have much the same homey warmth. Bob Burns, for instance. Yet somehow Burns as well as the rest just miss. They simply haven't got what it takes, the indefinable stuff that was pure Rogersania.

Oddly, one of Rogers' sons and one who would shrink from trying to fill his father's shoes, is believed by many to come nearest to being the original package. He has many of his Dad's jerky mannerisms, speaking stumbles and a heavy fund of alfalfa aphorisms.

The best-mannered movie audiences in town are at the two Trans Lux theatres on the Gold Coast stretch of upper Madison avenue. Most of the clientele is composed of regulars, which include the President's mother, Frank Crowninshield, the Winthrop Alriches, the Byron Foy, Mrs. Vincent Astor and such. Many customers use it as a drop-in between after-dinner and the night club buzz and are ermined and white tied—all very high tea and fra is la!

Buddy Baer, on the upswing in pugilism, shows none of the exhibitionist qualities that brought yawns for his brother Max. Instead of indulging capers in the cafes, he goes to the movies or attends hockey and other sporting events. In his human contacts, he suggests an amiable grizzly—if there is such an animal. His only similarity to his brother is his exuberance. After a recent victory at the Garden he pirouetted around the ring in a veritable fit of hysteria, so much so his handlers had to lead him off to his dressing room ga ga.

A thin horse for a long race is strikingly emphasized by the Broadway columnist Louis Sobol. A fragile, bespectacled fellow who wouldn't weigh more than 125 pounds soaking wet with a flatiron in each hand, he seems to thrive on his nightly circle of the cafes. Wherever Broadway puts on a show or a dido, he is at the ringside jotting down the casualties and transmitting them into capable columns before he calls it a night. The secret of such stamina is, of course, temperance in both food and drink. Sobol came out of New Haven via that journalistic penny-hybrid called The Graphic. He has a wife and daughter, has written a play, several novels and now and then makes personal appearances at the last of the vaudeville houses—Loew's State.

Crosby Gaige, the theatrical producer, is regarded by gourmets as one of the finest cooks this side of the Atlantic and a shrewd judge of wine. Too, he is the first person people think of in an effort to promote a benefit for some truly worthy person. Crosby lets others take the glory but he does the ground work. His latest benevolences were for the late Don Marquis—pronounced Mar-kwias—who had been out of the running for six years and whose work made life brighter for millions in his time.

Thingumbobs: Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt is reputed to have told friends she likes columning best of her chores. . . . Col. Jacob Ruppert likes a daily flower lapel, too. . . . He who hesitates: He swayed out of a bar, hailed a taxi, stepped half in, told the taxi to wait and went back into the bar. An hour later, in passing, I peeked in to see the same gentleman on a chair making an impassioned speech to a bored bartender and a nodding customer.

SLEEP

Nowadays we hear a great deal about the need for sufficient hours of rest and relaxation, proper food and vitamins, exposure to sunshine and the prevention of infectious and disabling disease. It has always seemed to me that too little attention is given to one of the chief essentials to good health—sleep.

To be deprived of food and drink is a horrible experience. But a lack of sleep for several days is even a more trying and harrowing experience. There is no dependable record of one living without sleep beyond 10 days. Life has been maintained for a far longer time without food.

Sleep is one of the mysteries of life. While we are asleep certain physical changes take place. The pulse rate and blood pressure are decreased. We breathe slowly and deeply and there appears to be a definite increase in the activity of the internal glands.

Theories Advanced

Many theories have been advanced to explain the peculiarities of sleep. Some authorities believe it results from a decrease in the amount of blood sent to the brain. Others believe that sleep is produced by an accumulation of certain waste products in the blood. But as yet no explanation has been generally accepted, and many points about it are imperfectly understood.

Taking our lives from infancy to old age, about one-third of our time is spent in sleep. As we mature there is a decrease in the numbers of hours devoted to sleep. The greatest amount, of course, is demanded in early infancy and in extreme old age.

"Insomnia" is the scientific word for loss of sleep. Those who suffer from it are indeed unfortunate. Such persons are deprived of the necessary rest and relaxation which come with sleep. This condition should never be neglected and if it persists a doctor should be consulted. Above all, avoid the use of so-called "sleeping powders."

While I am on the subject of sleep, let me mention a universal but erroneous belief. It is the popular idea that when two persons sleep together the stronger one will draw certain amounts of energy from the air or body of the weaker one. This is just a silly notion.

"GIVE HER WINGS" by MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER XV

It was the first time in her short life that Julie could remember not throwing all her efforts into getting ready for a party.

Even Dick perked up over the party. He was pleased as a child over his new dinner jacket, took Julie to the tailor with him on Saturday afternoon to have her approve the fit of the shoulders. She meant it, that he looked so handsome in it. Julie had a pretty, appealing way of paying compliments. Dick hugged her hard, patted her shoulder as though he was glad for something that she couldn't understand. How could he know that he was glad he was making her happy? He had only that satisfaction to sustain his hope that he had done the right thing.

Then something happened that changed all Julie's plans.

Rita Cartright told Julie that there was to be a great "do-do" at her place on the Fourth. Dick's flying club—seven planes in all—were coming from all over for lunch. It was going to be a barbecue.

Julie wanted to be at that party. Rita had told her that Clarence, the transatlantic flier, was going to be there; Frank Illsey, the aviation editor of a New York newspaper. Oh, Julie wanted an invitation to that party. She began to look forward to her flight. That would bring her nearer to their level of interests. The things she'd have to talk about—

The third was only a few days off. Julie and Rita were friends. Julie had twice been invited to lunch and swim at the Cartright's after that first day. Rita had talked vaguely about people she wanted to meet but Julie had never met them.

"Tommy Hayden and Katherine—his wife, and she has a pilot's license—flew over from Boston yesterday. Rita would say in her off-hand manner, 'You'd like them.' Or, 'I almost telephoned you last night. Jerry Kincaid drove up in Jean and Havie and we went to a roadhouse. Jerry wanted me to go but we didn't finish dinner until late.'"

Almost wasn't good enough. And Jerry Kincaid liked her, did he? Julie had looked up Jerry Kincaid in the book, "The Aviation Book." He was, it appeared, a sort of a celebrity. He had been in his plane in all the national races, had made and won entrance flights. Julie pigeon-holed information with Rita's remark that he liked her. Hadn't Pete Waddell told her to think like a man and be herself? She was doing the best of her ability.

Julie had a blind faith in destiny. It was going to mean something to her. She didn't like it and she never would but somehow destiny was going to find a means for her. Meanwhile, she was going to herself.

She got out her pencil and paper and did some rapid calculations. She was going to give a party. The facilities of the Allerdyce household did not compare with those at the Cartright's but there was no reason why that should deter her. She had nothing to be ashamed of. The Allerdyce silver was worn thin but it was good silver and there was enough of it. There was a fine Italian lace cloth her mother had brought back from her honeymoon in Florence. The wide, polished cherry-wood table would seat eight.

Rita ... Dick ... Millicent ... Althea ... Charlie Clark ... Pete Waddell ... Julie. The names appeared in a neat little row. Sighing, she added: Tommy. Dad was spending the holidays with Aunt Sarah Allerdyce.

She'd get out flowers from the florist, deep red roses, with candles for the tall candelabra.

Her pencil moved over the pad rapidly. She wrote: cocktails, two; ice cream, clear soup. She crossed out soup; Cousin couldn't manage it. She wrote: fried chicken, candied sweet potatoes, fresh lima beans. Those were Cousin's best dishes. She'd have a salad and ice-cream. No, ice-cream was too old-fashioned. They'd have ... she couldn't think of anything but ice-cream. She wrote: coffee.

She'd have place cards like Millicent had for her engagement party. Her thoughts strayed back to that party. It seemed so long ago! She wondered what she'd do about Dick. She hadn't told Rita or any of the gang at school that she was engaged. She hadn't worn her engagement ring. Well—she'd think of that when the time came. Her orange orandje? No, she'd worn that to the first dance. She'd make a jacket out of white pique and wear it over her black taffeta slip.

She'd have loved a new frock but when she'd bought the flowers and candles, the chickens and "extras" there wouldn't be much left in her emergency fund. And she'd have to do something nice for Cousin, who would bear the greater burden of her party.

Cousin was delighted. So was Priscilla, whose joy was short-lived. Priscilla was relegated to having supper that night with the detestable Susie Twining.

The way was clear and easy. There was only one thing to consider: suppose Rita couldn't come? She had to. Julie wasn't giving the party because she had any social urge—she expected her invitation to her dinner party and the country club dance to be reciprocated—with an invitation to spend the day of the Fourth at Rita Cartright's.

Having disposed of the details of her own party, Julie gave her attention to what she'd wear at the Cartright's, what she'd say. She meant to bone on her lessons between that day and the Fourth. Rita's guests would find that a girl could have brains as well as beauty. She wouldn't talk too much, she'd ask intelligent questions. She would wear her beige which was her "best" dress—she'd be very simply dressed as you'd expect a girl to be

"I meant to tell you, Rita. There's a dance at our country club. It sounds as though it will be great fun. It's on Friday night and I'm going to have some people to dinner. That's my way of celebrating. Will you come?" She waited, with so much hanging on Rita's answer.

"Love to, Julie. You won't mind if I leave early? And ... oh, I almost forgot! We want you to come over for the barbecue."

At the same time that Julie enjoyed her triumph, she thought, "Oh, dear, I didn't need to have given the party!"

The sky was overcast but the air was still. There was no wind.

Julie thought, it will rain tonight and spoil the dance. The thought was on the remote edges of her mind. She thought about it briefly, leadenly, the way you think of things that will happen in a place long after you've left it. The evening wasn't a mere twelve hours away—it was a part of time in another era. It was as if by thinking of it normally she was tempting fate.

Pete Waddell was talking to her. Please, Pete, go on talking all day. Don't let's ever move from this spot. Don't make me walk that last mile to that plane.

The monkey suit impeded the movement of her legs. She couldn't keep in step with Pete's long stride as they crossed the field. The shoulders bore down on her, making the back of her neck ache. She hadn't even put her helmet on yet, the blood sang in her ears, shutting out everything but the cheerful drone of Pete's voice. He was patiently going over the things he had told her. He was so cool about it.

Her fingers fumbled in the straps and buckles.

Red Warman, who acted as mechanic, had the propellers whirling. Over the roar, Pete said, "Scared, kid?"

He grinned at her wickedly.

She shook her head. "Keep your head," he yelled. "It's easier than driving a car. You can't run into anything. No lights, no pedestrians.

And remember, you know how to fly. Okay?"

He held out his hand and Julie put her cold one in his. He knew it was cold. He knew why, but he shook it heartily. He had no fears for her. The kid wasn't made of flying stuff but she had spirit and a woman with spirit seldom made mechanical mistakes.

She scorned his helping hand, got a foot on the strut, swung into the cockpit, lowering herself into place. Then she was alone. She had to get the plane up and down again. Preferably with a safe space of time between.

The switch was off. Red turned the propeller until the mixture was sucked into the cylinders. He shouted "Contact!" Julie's fingers turned on the switch; her mind had nothing to do with it. Her mind was numb. She shouted "Contact!" (To be continued.)

P. R. R. ENGINEER DIES OF BURNS

New Castle, Pa., Trainman Is Victim In Blast Near Ravenna; Fireman Badly Burned

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 13.—Charles M. Thompson, 55, of New Castle, Pa., engineer of a Pennsylvania railroad freight train, died in South Side hospital last night of burns received from live steam in the cab of his engine near Ravenna.

John Hull, 52, of Tyrell in adjacent Trumbull county, fireman, who fell from the moving engine while blinded by the steam, was still in a serious condition in the hospital.
After Hull rolled out of the moving cab into the right of way and screamed for help, trainmen raced over the tops of the cars to the locomotive, jammed on the brakes and rescued the engineer. Both injured men were rushed to Youngstown on a passenger train. They were working on a Baltimore and Ohio right of way between Ravenna and Newton Falls.

Fail To Identify Suspect In Slaying

YOUNGSTOWN, Jan. 13.—More than a dozen persons used as witnesses in two unsolved murder cases today failed to identify Thomas Galati, 28, Cleveland ex-convict, who is being held for investigation in connection with the gangland slaying of Roy (Happy) Marino.

Galati was placed in a police show-up line by Detective Chief W. W. Reed. Persons who had witnessed events connected with the slaying of Marino and the robbery holdup of James Tison, beer garden proprietor, told detectives they had not seen Galati previously.

Marino's bullet-riddled body was found Sept. 10 last year, near Rogers. Tison was slain the day before when three bandits robbed him of $1,000.

Not Interested

LISBON, Jan. 13.—Contradicting reports said to be current in East Liverpool, C. D. McCullough, assistant veterans' service representative here, declared Wednesday he was not interested in searing the post of prosecutor's investigator.

Mr. McCullough was requested several weeks ago by Prosecutor Karl Stouffer to conduct an investigation into reported Communist activities in the county. He later delegated this work to Clarence Wetzel of Lisbon, another Legionnaire.

STILL "TOPS"... after 31 Years As a Tobacco Auctioneer

"I recently sold 489,000 pounds of tobacco in one 6 1/2 hour day," says Mr. J. N. Edwards of Farmville, North Carolina.

"There was a buyer, naturally, for every one of those 489,000 pounds... But there was as much difference between the best grades and the inferior, as between a pretty girl and a homely one.

"At auction after auction, I've seen Lucky Strike go after the prettiest lots of tobacco. It's no wonder Luckies taste so good. I've smoked them since 1917.

"And another thing... even after yelling out tobacco bids all during a seven hour day, Luckies are still just as easy as ever on my throat."

Only Lucky Strike offers you the finest tobacco plus the throat-protection of the exclusive process "It's Toasted". This process takes out certain irritants found in all tobacco—even the finest.

Men who know tobacco from A to Z—experts like Mr. Edwards—are surely good judges of cigarettes... Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all the other cigarettes combined.

WORLD SKATING CHAMP ARRIVES IN CLEVELAND

Sonja Henie to Present Show at Arena For Five Nights

CLEVELAND, Jan. 13.—Miss Sonja Henie, beautiful blond Nordic whose gay and exciting maneuvers on ice are particularly responsible for the phenomenal success of touring ice carnivals, will appear with her famous Hollywood ice revue at Cleveland's new million dollar arena for five nights starting Sunday.

The troupe arrived here Wednesday night from another record breaking sellout run at Detroit's Olympia, and present box office indications here are that the success of Miss Henie's inaugural personal appearance in Ohio are no longer a gamble.

A sellout will greet the world champion skater and eighth ranking box-office attraction of movie-land in her Sabbath bow. Tickets for her next four performances are reported as moving briskly.

Two extra performances were necessary at Detroit, making her Auto City appearance a seven night stand that grossed around $6,000 fans and a cash gate of $123,000. In Chicago's Stadium, the show sold out completely on its original schedule of seven nights, added two more and stood them in the aisles. The total Windy City gate receipts hit close to the $200,000 mark with 140,000 paid admissions, breaking all previous records in the world of entertainment.

Miss Henie's Hollywood ice revue, composed of the cast that supported her in her "Thin Ice" and "One in a Million", box office smashes on the silver screen, is molded along the lines of a stage extravaganza. Costuming in some of the ensemble numbers cost more than $20,000. Harry Loss, rated at the top as a dance director, and who does the work of staging and directing the productions for Twentieth-Century Fox Films, staged all of the Hollywood ice revue numbers.

Hollywood ice revue presents 14 gorgeously costumed and pleasingly executed numbers. Miss Henie featured star of the show, breaks all traditions by appearing in no less than seven of the numbers.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—At least six colleges are bidding for Bill Savoy, 235-pound Great Bend, Kan., high school star, who set a Kansas record with 31 touchdowns in one western school was so interested it sent Bill to the Rose Bowl game "on the house". "I don't be surprised if Sammy Snead, the golfing ace, takes a blonde bride any day now."

Both the Baer boys will be on hand for the Bradstock-Farr bout Jan. 21. Maxie meets the winner March 11. Hank Greenberg, the Detroit Tiger home run specialist, took three full swings at a tempered glass door on Wall street with a bat but couldn't as much as dent the glass. "Those who should know say Jimmy Johnson will have to lay $65,000 on the line before Don Budge turns pro."

Ted Broadbribb, ex-manager of Tommy Farr, sailed from England yesterday with Ernie Weiss, midweight champion of Austria and Jimmy Vaughan, British lightweight, both will be put under the wing of the veteran Charlie Harvey. Frankie Frisch, who is putting in a tough winter attending hockey games, promises a drastic shake-up on the Cardinals next season. Gomez, Ruffing, DiMaggio and Henrich are among the Yanks slated to get pay boosts. "None of the Jints were cut and most of them were raised."

BAR STUDYING NEW EQUIPMENT

Consider photostatic copying
For Clerk of Court's Office

LISBON, Jan. 13.—The advisability of purchasing photostatic equipment for use in the county recorder's office will be investigated by a special committee appointed by the Columbiana County Bar association at a meeting in the courthouse Monday afternoon.

The committee consisting of Attorneys Charles McCorkhill, Salem; George Lafferty, Lisbon; and S. W. Crawford, East Liverpool, will make inquiries regarding the cost of the equipment and the successfulness of its operation in counties already using it.

Sponsors claim the equipment would result in elimination of much of the typing now necessary. They state the original documents can be photographed and recorded without the transcription essential under present arrangements. Summit county as well as other districts are said to be employing the equipment with considerable savings in labor and time.

The site of the first court house in the county and state in Middletown township was the subject of a committee report at the meeting. Committee member stated a large boulder located within 100 yards of the site could be moved and would make a natural monument to the early building where justice was administered in pioneer days. A plaque joined to the stone was recommended.

A memorial honoring the memory of Judge J. W. Roberts, appellate jurist who died several months ago while the court was in session here, was submitted by Probate Judge H. W. Hammond and approved. The memorial was prepared by a committee including Judge W. F. Lones, Sam Crawford, Charles Boyd and Judge Hammond.

Committees also were appointed by President L. M. Kyes to arrange for a group photograph of the association and to submit data regarding famous attorneys born in the county. Both will report at a later meeting.

Several matters relative to the association's campaign against "ambulance chasers" were discussed but the reports were not made public. The grievance committee in charge of the investigation will hold another closed meeting Wednesday in the court house.

demonstration, saying it was "pre-mature".

The story will come out in due course of time when my whole philosophy of life has been worked out and lived out and that will be time enough for all who are interested in the fact that man can, here and now, put the fullness of the Godhead bodily, provided he is a willing instrument in the Father's hands," the dean said.

Theater Attractions

Buck Jones, star of the Grand feature, "Hollywood Roundup" showing Friday and Saturday

Carole Lombard and Frederic March are teamed in "Nothing Sacred", hilarious comedy which shows tonight, Friday and Saturday at the State theater.

Others in the cast are Maxie Rosenbloom, former light-heavyweight boxing champion, Charles Winniger, Walter Connolly, Sig Rummann, Aileen Pringle, Hattie McDaniels, Hedda Hopper and John Qualen.

She Has Her Fling
The story concerns the efforts of a Vermont girl to get the things she's always wanted and to go to the places she has always wanted to visit. She gets in touch with a New York newspaper informing the editor that she has radium poison and has only a few weeks to live. She offers to write a daily feature for the paper if it will finance her one great fling.

The paper brings her to New York, gives her the time of her life doing the shops and night clubs with their ex-ace reporter, Fredric March. They fall in love, the paper finds out she doesn't have radium poison and things end abruptly.

Buck Jones at Grand
Buck Jones, popular western player, comes to the Grand in "Hollywood Roundup", which will be seen Friday and Saturday.

Buck portrays a cowboy stunt man and double for Grant Withers who is the conceited, tipping, loud dressing star of this story without the story. Unable to, and fearful of performing the neck-risking, hazardous stunts which Buck does in his stead as "double", Withers comes to envy and hate Buck. When Helen Twelvrees becomes the center of romantic rivalry between Buck and Withers, an open feud between the pair results.

Dickie Jones, Shemp Howard, Eddie Kane, Lester Dorr, Lee Shumway, and Warren Jackson are among the players in the supporting cast.

tie clasp in the pocket. The clasp was bent.

Pages of the engineering log and other papers.

The plane's navigating desk. Bits of navigators' charts. Many small wood fragments from the inside of the plane.

A drawer.

Fragments Cover Water
The surface of the water was covered with hundreds of small fragments conceded by searchers to be fragments of the fuselage.

As the tragedy was reconstructed, gasoline being dumped was vaporized and ignited, presumably by a hot exhaust pipe. Whether an explosion occurred in midair or after the 21-ton all-metal flying boat hit the water was not hazarded by authorities here.

If the story told by natives is true, the plane, or gasoline and oil from its tanks, must have burned on the surface of the water. They told of seeing a large volume of black smoke rise from the water at the time the plane disappeared.

Official statements of Pan American Airways and naval officers issued before the fragments had been returned here and studied, spoke only of the plane being destroyed by fire.

The Avocet's officers cryptically announced:
"Plane and crew lost."

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

To Flush out Acids and Other
Poisonous Waste

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the beginning of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
